

Zeus Traffic Manager Development License

Zeus. Why wait...

Zeus Traffic Manager Development Licenses allow any individual or organization to build and test applications using Zeus load balancing and application delivery functionality at zero cost.

Zeus Traffic Manager manages traffic to online services, ensuring they are available and responsive, and it assists the management of the applications and the supporting infrastructure. It is a software alternative to legacy hardware load balancers and modern Application Delivery Controllers (ADCs).

Application Delivery for Application Developers

Hardware load balancers and ADCs are typically managed by operations teams and are not easily accessible to application architects, developers and test teams. However, the powerful 'application-fluent' capabilities of modern ADCs are invaluable to developers seeking to build high-performance, highly-scalable web applications, but acquiring additional appliances for the use of development and test is prohibitively expensive.

Zero-cost Zeus Traffic Manager Development Licenses allow an organization to deploy as many Zeus Traffic Managers as they require for non-production purposes, such as training, development, testing and proof-of-concept projects. Any application developer can build and test their applications using Zeus on any platform.

Zeus Traffic Manager Development Licenses facilitate application development and enable better collaboration between the teams in an organization responsible for creating, managing and delivering these applications.

"We found that with Content Caching and TrafficScript™, Zeus Traffic Manager is much more than a great load balancer.

"Zeus Traffic Manager is really more of an extension of our applications because of what it enables us to do."

Where will you run your application?

As a software application, Zeus runs equally comfortably in traditional physical datacenters, directly on virtualization platforms, and in any outsourced Cloud provider's environment. When you need to build load balancing and ADC capabilities into your application, Zeus will support you wherever you ultimately place your application.

If your development environment is in a different location to your production environment (for example, local vs. cloud), or if your next application is not yet in production, Zeus Traffic Manager Development Licenses will support your development processes in a very cost effective manner.

Zeus Licensing Options

“I want to understand what Zeus Traffic Manager is and what I can do with it.”

The Zeus Traffic Manager Desktop Edition is a training and education aid to help users learn and understand the capabilities of the Zeus Traffic Manager. It’s available at no charge, and consists of a virtual machine with the Zeus software, some sample web servers and a set of training exercises.

“I want to learn and try out some Zeus solutions, but I’m not ready for production yet.”

Application developer can obtain long-term Development Licenses. You may use this license for non-production purposes, such as development, demonstration and testing, and the license is renewable yearly at no cost.

“I want to evaluate Zeus Traffic Manager with a view to deploying a production service.”

If you wish to evaluate Zeus with a view to deploying it in production, the Zeus Managed Evaluation program is the route to follow. Evaluators receive full technical support from experienced Zeus consultants during the one-month evaluation period.

“I want to run Zeus Traffic Manager in a live, production service.”

Once Zeus is in use on a production service, a paid-for license is required, and a support contract is recommended. Any Zeus customers with a support contract will automatically receive a free site-wide Zeus Traffic Manager Development license.

Development License Program – Terms and Conditions

In addition to the terms of the Zeus software EULA, the following terms and conditions apply to the Development License program:

1. Non production use only

License keys issued under the Zeus Traffic Manager Development License program may be used on internal and personal systems used for development, testing, proof of concept, demonstration and other non-commercial and non-critical purposes. They may not be used on live or production systems.

2. Support

Software using Zeus Traffic Management Development license keys is not entitled to technical support from Zeus Technology.

3. Scope of use

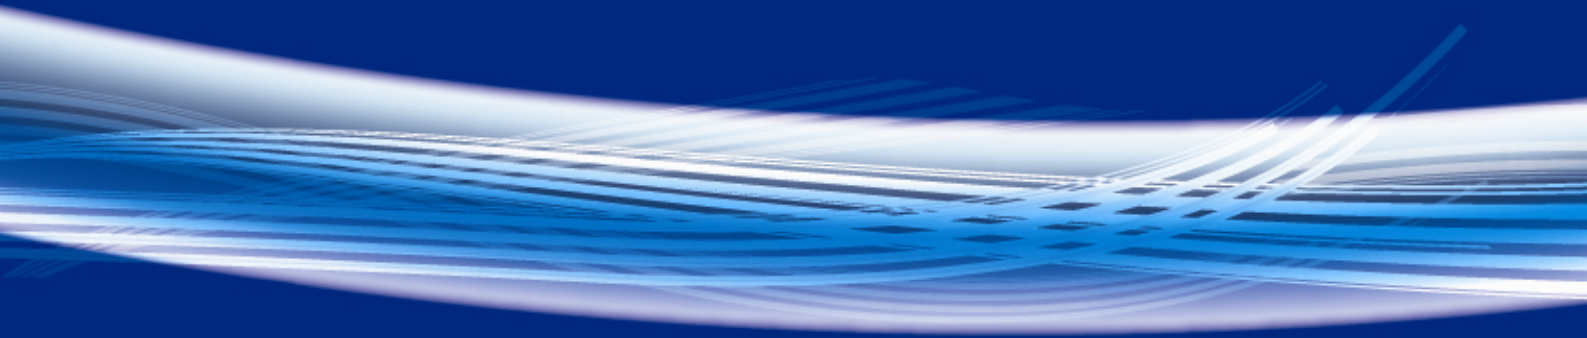

License keys issued under the Zeus Traffic Manager Development License may only be used by the individual or organization named in the key, and may not be distributed beyond the named individual or organization.

4. Duration of the program

License keys are initially valid for one year from the date of issue, and are renewed at Zeus' discretion.

5. Performance and Load Testing

Zeus Traffic Manager Development License keys contain a performance restriction that makes them unsuitable for performance and load testing. Users may obtain unrestricted license keys from Zeus through other evaluation programs.
